International Growth Continues:
Rhythmink International, LLC Receives CE Marking & ISO 13485 Certification

COLUMBIA, S.C. - March 5, 2010 - Conformity markings allow Rhythmink International products to be marketed throughout Europe, launching Rhythmink to a new level within the neurodiagnostic and health care industry.

As of January 28, 2010, Rhythmink International received ISO 13485:2003 certification, in combination with official CE markings, following MDD 93/42/ECC Directives. Rhythmink's quality management system was audited in accordance with ISO 13485:2003 and is recognized by the Canadian Medical Devices Conformity Assessment Scheme [CMDCAS] and the Standards Council of Canada [SCC] accredited notified body, TUV Rheinland.

Effective immediately, Rhythmink may sell and market product within the European Union [EU] and partnering nations. "Our ISO 13485:2003 certification is key to the growth of the company. This certification demonstrates to the markets in the European Union that Rhythmink will provide products backed by a quality management system that reduces risk to patients," said Martin Barry, Rhythmink International's regulatory affairs specialist.

As an electrode manufacturing company, within the medical devices industry, Rhythmink International is bound by strict FDA regulations and regulatory requirements. Rhythmink's quality management system has demonstrated the ability to provide medical devices and services that consistently achieve customer and regulatory requirements, thus receiving ISO 13485:2003 certification and ISO 13485:2003 + AC:2007 CE Markings.

Under European Directives and supported by European standards, Rhythmink and its products are in full compliance with essential health and safety requirements. The CE Marking is Rhythmink's declaration that all products meet the essential requirements of the European directives.
